

Plan Outside the Box

Take some time to really think about what you want to do after high school—law, medical, vet, pastry chef, world-renowned artist—you name it. Don't worry about cost or practicality just yet, instead consider what would make you the happiest. Got it? Write it below.

Time for the research. That's right, search "How to become a _____" into your favorite search engine and see what pops up. Answer the following questions.

1. Is a traditional education required for this career?

2. How much would it cost (from start to finish) if you chose this path?

3. How much could you make if you choose to go this route?

4. What would you gain from this path? (List the pros)

5. What do you have to lose? (List the cons)
